Certain Things That He Wanted Remembered.

"If You Don't Like Your
New Pastor,
Do Not Forget That He May
Not Like You."

Last Sermon Preached by Rev. Frank C. Haddock Sunday.

Rev. Frank C. Haddock, pastor of the First M. E. church, preached his final sermon to an Akron congregation Sunday.

At the morning service, the auditorium and galleries of the large edifice were filled. The retiring pastor preached upon the "Influence of the Resurrection." His discourse was both eloquent and appropriate.

Preliminary to his sermon, Rev. Haddock announced that his successor, Dr. Milton B. Pratt, would occupy the pulpit next Sunday. In this connection, he gave the members some points to remember. Said he: "Remember that you are to please but one man; and that he is expected to please 850 individuals. If you don't happen to like him, remember that he may not like you. It is his business to overlook your faults, and you have a good many; and it is your business to overlook his faults, and because he is a man, he also has a good many. I never had anything but love for this church, and in my relation to it as its pastor, I never did anything without intending it to be for the highest welfare of the church, trusting that it would revert to the glory of God."

"I trust you will take right hold of the work with Dr. Pratt and help him. For the first 30 days, at least, extend to him a warm welcome, and make him feel and know that he is among friends."

Write for particulars of excursions to: R. Sid Jones, D. P. A., in charge of humigration, Birmingham, Ala., or Jackson Smith, D. P. A., Cincinnati, O.
